December 2013 Newsletter

Dear Friends,

It’s that wonderful time of year to relax, enjoy a much-needed holiday and a pleasant Christmas break.

Next month The Forgiveness Project will be 10 years old this year. It is hard to believe that it has been ten years since you first heard of us and that we have come to mean so much to so many people. The journey has been a challenging one, whether through difficulties of lack of funding, or the challenges of growing an organization and strategy and ways of working.

To mark our ten-year anniversary we are pleased to launch a new website for December 2014 that not only the website and its content but something further information store on the newsletter.

We have some other developments to share. Dr. Dan Gilbert will be on the cover of the January 2014 issue of London’s Paediatric Cardiac. It is about a young boy with a rare heart defect, who is also a volunteer for The Forgiveness Project, and who has written the front cover story.

We also have a special guest contributor for this month: Joanne Stryker. Joanne wrote the best selling book How To Forgive for Forgiveness or Living With the Pain of Loss, and has travelled to over 40 countries with her message. For her article for this month, Joanne has written a beautiful, insightful story about her recent trip to Kenya, and how forgiveness can bring peace and understanding between communities.

Joanne’s article is in addition to a set of special focus articles including an exploration of what some forgiveness strategies are, and a more general input on managing case relationships. Next month: Transitions and a focus on how to support the bereaved.

RESTORE programme

While we are celebrating the 10th anniversary of the movement against violence, we are also celebrating the 10th anniversary of our RESTORE programme. Both are in a number of ways projects about helping, empowering, and creating practical change. Our latest.restory is a focus on the mental health appliance programme which continues to work with people with mental health problems, and which has created some valuable partnerships in the process. We are also introducing a new feature where we ask our RESTORE partners to share what they are doing for the last quarter of the year, and we will follow up with a round-up of what they are doing in the new year.

As we have been exploring the work of the RESTORE programme, we have also been exploring the ways in which that is connected to our work elsewhere. We are excited to launch the RESTORE app, which allows you to connect with our 150 partners globally, and to see what they are doing to make a difference.

The F Word Exhibition

The F Word exhibition: ‘My preferred and deeply abiding: exactly as it is today in forgiveness and restoration’.

This is the third month of the F Word exhibition in London, which is at the National Gallery in London, and online here. This month the exhibition is looking at the work of the F Word exhibition: ‘My preferred and deeply abiding: exactly as it is today in forgiveness and restoration’.

We are excited to announce that the exhibition is now available to see in full on our website.

We are also delighted to see that the exhibition is being used by a number of organizations, and that a number of organizations are using the exhibition to help their work.

Winston Churchill Travelling Fellowship

We have recently returned from a trip to Canada and America. It is really wonderful to see a Winston Churchill Travelling Fellowship, and we give the opportunity to learn about the great friendship between the United States in the United Kingdom. We are delighted to be able to share our experience with others, and to see what they are doing to make a difference.

Other News

The Doctor in Grey Paulaitis, Conflict Resolution and Coercive Control, is now available by MROS in line with their commitment to providing quality, accessible and affordable resources for the family violence and domestic violence sectors. This book is a comprehensive guide to the world of conflict resolution and coercive control, and is a valuable resource for anyone working in the field.

We are delighted to be able to share the news that the F Word exhibition is now available on the website. We would like to thank everyone who has made this possible.
